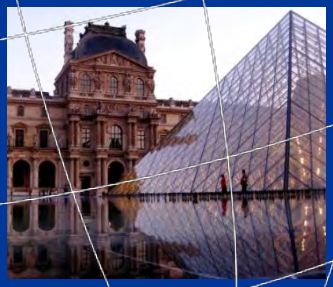
University of California, San Diego

Annual Report 2009 – 2010



About the International Center

Our mission is to facilitate and promote UC San Diego's participation in global scholarship, international education exchange, and scholarly investigation.

Our work is integral to the University's larger goals of global collaboration and innovation. International Center staff and volunteers are dedicated to making sure students and faculty are supported in the pursuit of their academic, personal, and professional goals.

Our goal is to ensure that all students have the knowledge, skills, and sensitivities they need to meaningfully engage in our local, national, and international communities.

ISO

The International Scholar Office (ISO) advises all departments at UC San Diego on visa regulations and the visa selection when hiring an international scholar and also provides information on immigration regulations, other government regulations, health insurance, and services and activities on campus and in the community.

UC San Diego ranks 7th in the nation in the number of international scholars on campus.

ISPO

The International Student and Programs Office (ISPO) provides a wide array of services and programs for 2,200 international students and their dependents at UC San Diego in an effort to help them achieve their academic, personal, and professional goals and to support their legal stay in the USA.

UC San Diego ranks among the top 5% of schools nationally in the number of international students on campus.

PAO

The Programs Abroad Office (PAO) provides high quality services and resources to enable UC San Diego students to study, work, intern, research, and volunteer abroad. Students may choose from thousands of options.

UC San Diego ranks 10th in the nation in the number of students studying abroad for a full year.

In 2009-10, the 38 professional staff of the International Center provided services to 2,591 international students (putting UC San Diego in the top 5% of universities nationally), 2,375 international scholars (ranking us seventh in the country among public research universities), and 1,258 students preparing for education abroad experiences (we rank tenth in the US for students going abroad for a full year). UC San Diego students are involved in the International Club, join us for International Friday Café, tutor international students, scholars and spouses, win UC awards for research done abroad, and introduce newly arriving international students to UC San Diego and the community—just to name a few ways they are internationally engaged.

We improved our services and programs in 2009-10 for an increasing number of international students. We appreciate all of the collaboration with our colleagues across campus and have listed our key partners at the end of this Annual Report.

Global Seminars (UC San Diego faculty-led, 8 unit, 5-week education abroad programs) were launched in Summer 2008 with 135 participants. Just three years later, we look forward to sending over 250 students abroad on eleven Global Seminars in Summer 2011.

The successful expansion of our internationalization efforts over the years caused an increasingly untenable space situation for the International Center. In October 2010 the new design for the International Center was approved and we are in the process of raising funds.

International Center Awards

The Chancellor's International Center Volunteer Awards

On May 25, 2010, the UC San Diego International Center and the Friends of the International Center hosted our 26th annual dinner in honor of the volunteers supporting our programs and the students receiving scholarships. Each recipient received a certificate, presented by Ann Craig, Provost Emeritus of Eleanor Roosevelt College. In addition, award recipients' names were engraved on our perpetual award plaques located in the International Center lounge.

Partners in International Education

On November 16, 2010, as part of the 11th annual International Education Week, the UC San Diego International Center awarded the third Partners in International Education awards to four outstanding UC San Diego faculty and staff members and one academic department. The Partners in International Education awards are given out annually to colleagues from across campus who make significant contributions to the internationalization of the University. Together with their collaboration, the International Center is able to provide programs and services that may not otherwise exist.

We are very appreciative of the contributions of these award winners and all of our partners across campus and in the community!

Student Spotlight…

Project by UCSD International Students Recognized at 2011 Clinton Global Initiative University

Maria Elisa Martinez (Chile), Erika Jue (USA), and Lila Petersen (Mexico), graduate students at the Graduate School and International Relations & Pacific Studies (IR/PS), were recognized at the 4th Annual Clinton Global Initiative University (CGI U) from April 1-3, 2011 at UC San Diego. Moved by the aftermath of the 2010 Chilean earthquake, their project called "Lighting Up Post-Disaster Communities" commits to providing off-grid, solar-powered lighting for 50 families displaced by the earthquake and living in transitional shelters. When the families move to permanent housing, they will take the mobile solar panels with them; units that can be installed by a single person, quickly and easily. "Lighting Up Post-Disaster Communities" project was one of 16 selected for the CGI U Commitment Bracket Challenge, a take-off on the NCAA tournament bracket for college basketball. People from around the world were encouraged to vote online for their favorite commitment.

CGI U is an annual meeting designed to engage the next generation of leaders on college campuses around the world. CGI U participation is through a competitive application process that includes the student's commitment to action. Over the course of the three days, attendees network with peers and learn about innovative ideas to tackle poverty alleviation, education, environment and climate change, peace and human rights, and public health. More importantly, they attend skill-building sessions that address fundraising, community engagement, partnership building, and the use of social media to market a cause. To date, CGI U has been a catalyst to over 3,000 commitments to action by college students.

International Scholar Office

Gladys Calderon
ISO/ISPO Office Manager

The International Scholar Office (ISO) provides a wide array of services to academic departments and the over 2,300 international professors, researchers, and visiting scholars coming to UC San Diego.

Services and Goals of the International Scholar Office

- Prepare visa application documents and obtain approvals for non-immigrant and immigrant employment visa/status to support the University's objectives for teaching and research.
- Advise academic departments on visa selection for employing and hosting international faculty, researchers, and short-term visitors.
- Provide comprehensive pre-arrival advising and orientation for new international scholars and their dependents; provide on-going advising and information in a variety of issues related to immigration, personal, and acculturation matters.
- Ensure timely reporting and compliance with all government requirements.
- Assist academic departments and scholars with maintenance of legal immigration and employment status.
- Provide on-going training sessions on visa selection and immigration regulations for academic departments and international scholars.
- In conjunction with the other International Center offices, provide cross-cultural programming, events, and activities for international scholars to integrate into and enrich the campus and local community.
- Cultivate and maintain relationships with stakeholders (campus departments and administration, federal, state, and local government agencies, and the local community) in order to advocate on behalf of our international scholars and their dependents.

The Big Picture

In 2009-2010, the total international scholar population at UC San Diego was 2,375, a very small decrease from the previous year. 1,773 scholars were in J-1 (Exchange Visitor) status, 377 in H-1B employment visa status. We issued more than 1,200 new and extension documents for the J-1 status (a significant increase from the previous year) and submitted more than 150 new and extension H-1B petitions for approval by US Citizenship and Immigration Services. In addition, we prepared more than 30 permanent resident ("Green Card") petitions for approval.

Efforts and Challenges

We strive to provide excellent services for UC San Diego's academic research departments and international scholars. However, even with our best efforts and intentions, extraneous factors sometimes generate dissatisfaction and frustration. Ever new requirements by US government agencies (often unannounced and/or implemented with short notice) and unexpected delays in the processing of our petitions by the government and form fee increases are a constant challenge. Some of our visitors are subject to extensive scrutiny and delays when they apply for their entry visas to the USA.

Through our professional organization and in collaboration with colleagues and outside immigration attorneys, we continue to engage US government agencies in a dialogue to develop our rapport and better services.

A Reputation for Excellence

UC San Diego's reputation for academic excellence and research opportunities continues to attract professors, researchers, and visiting scholars from all over the world. International scholars make a significant impact and major contributions to the teaching and research efforts at UC San Diego. In 2009-2010, UC San Diego ranked seventh among major research institutions in the USA. In the previous year, UC San Diego ranked seventh as well.

Rina Schul is a visiting scholar from Israel.

Rina first came to the U.S. as a Fulbright post-doctoral fellow to receive training in neuropsychological research. During the process, she fell in love with clinical applications. To pursue her passions she earned a second doctorate (this time in the U.S.) in Clinical Psychology with a subspecialty in Clinical Neuropsychology. Dr. Schul then returned to Israel where she worked in the Israeli Center for the Treatment of Psychotrauma, providing care to survivors of a variety of traumatic experiences (e.g., terror attacks, car accidents, medical traumas, among others). This valuable experience led her way back to UCSD. Dr. Schul currently works at the UCSD Counseling and Psychological Services providing therapy, crisis intervention, outreach and consultation to the student population as well as to the staff and faculty who work with them. Dr. Schul works closely with international students, helping them acclimate and adjust to the University and American culture. She combines her passion for clinical work with her love for teaching and applies her expertise in the field of trauma.

The International Students & Programs Office (ISPO) offers a wide array of services and programs for international students and their dependents at UC San Diego in an effort to support their legal stay in the USA and help them achieve their personal, academic, and professional goals. In addition, ISPO provides a variety of high quality programs and cross-cultural activities designed to successfully integrate international students at UC San Diego and provide the UC San Diego community with the experiences that foster the development of international knowledge, skills, and sensitivities.

Services and programs include:

- Comprehensive one-on-one advising and workshop sessions regarding immigration, international travel, financial planning, health insurance, employment authorization, cultural, technical, and personal issues;
- Application support for visas, maintenance of status, employment authorization, Social Security cards, California driver's licenses, federal and state taxes, and other benefits;
- Quarterly orientation and welcome program for new students and their dependents;
- Opportunities for all UC San Diego students to learn more about each other and the world through a variety of programs and events such as International Club (I-Club), English-In-Action Tutor Program, Peer Leader Program, Students Beyond Borders, Orientation Assistant Program, International Café, and International Education Week.

The Big Picture

UC San Diego continues to rank among the top 4% of institutions of higher education attracting international students[1]. The total number of international students increased by 15% from last year to 2,591 from 2,246--accounting for 7% of the total campus enrollment. In fact, 4% of the total undergraduate student body and almost 26% of the total graduate student body are international[2].

Implications of Growth During a Difficult Budgetary Climate

Admissions Data – Fall 2009
	Applicants	Admits	Enrolled
Freshman	2,301	677	72
Transfers	1,662	1,005	258
EAP-R	205	203	186
Graduate	5,481	1,024	381
TOTALS	9,649	2,909	897

The total international student population is expected to continue to grow in the next 3-5 years to fund over-enrollment of State-supported students. Despite the decline in State budget resources and resulting budget shortfall, ISPO must continue to ensure that the University is in compliance with federal and state mandates, as well as to provide the support needed by an anticipated growth in the international student population. ISPO continues to be in a growth phase in services and programs in order to ensure that the international student community continues to thrive, enrich our community, and contribute to our growing reputation for excellence. We look forward to welcoming new students, meeting the needs of current students, and capitalizing on new opportunities for campus-wide partnerships and collaborations especially in the areas of academic and English language support, career development and planning, health and wellness, and social adjustment and acculturation.

For a detailed breakdown for all countries sending students to UC San Diego, see page 36 in the Appendix.

Source: fsaATLAS (ISPO database), Data Warehouse, and Open Doors 2009*, Institute of International Education*

Coinciding with UC San Diego's centralized efforts to recruit more international students to UC San Diego, there was an increase in the total number of international graduate and undergraduate applicants (17%) and international graduate and undergraduate admits (9%) from 2008-2009. Overall number of "new" international graduate and undergraduate students—those enrolled and registered for courses during Fall 2009 for the first time at UC San Diego—increased from last year by nearly 30% to 897 from 692. The largest growth rate was seen in graduate student enrollments which increased from last year by 52% to 381 from 250.

UC San Diego's students come from 90 different regions/countries. 70% of all international students are from the Asia/Pacific region.

South Korea, China, and Taiwan—in rank order—remain the leading regions/countries of origin of UC San Diego's international students. South Korea remains the leading sending place of origin for the 5th consecutive year, increasing by nearly 8% from 2008-2009 to 637. In addition, 4 of the 10 top sending regions/countries—China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and India—posted double-digit gains from the previous year. The international student population continues to be markedly underrepresented when it comes to students from Africa and the Middle East.

International students contributed $20 billion to the US economy in 2009-2010. To the State economy, international students and their dependents contributed $2.8 billion[3].

The Programs Abroad Office (PAO) provides high quality services and resources to enable UC San Diego students to study, work, intern, research and volunteer abroad. Students may choose from thousands of options that fall under three major programs:

Jim Galvin, MA
Opportunities Abroad and Faculty-Led Programs Director

UC's Education Abroad Program (EAP): Students have opportunities in almost 200 programs in 35 countries. All options are administered by the University of California.

UC San Diego's Opportunities Abroad Program (OAP): An integrated process that allows students to participate in partner programs that are administered by organizations or institutions other than UC. We have 16 affiliated programs and thousands of options exist.

Jinous Kasravi, PhD
Education Abroad Program Director

UC San Diego's Global Seminars (GS): Our faculty teach two UC San Diego courses (8 quarter credits) abroad to small groups of students (15-28 participants), while taking advantage of their international location to bring course topics alive in a way that is not possible here on campus.

Highlights of 2009/2010:

- A UC San Diego student won the UC Systemwide EAP Undergraduate Research Award competition in Social Sciences for work that she completed in Japan;
- The percentage of UC San Diego students abroad who were STEM majors was 28.4%, well above the national statistic of 16.6%. The percentage of our students abroad majoring in Engineering, 6.6%, was more than double the national number of 3.2%.

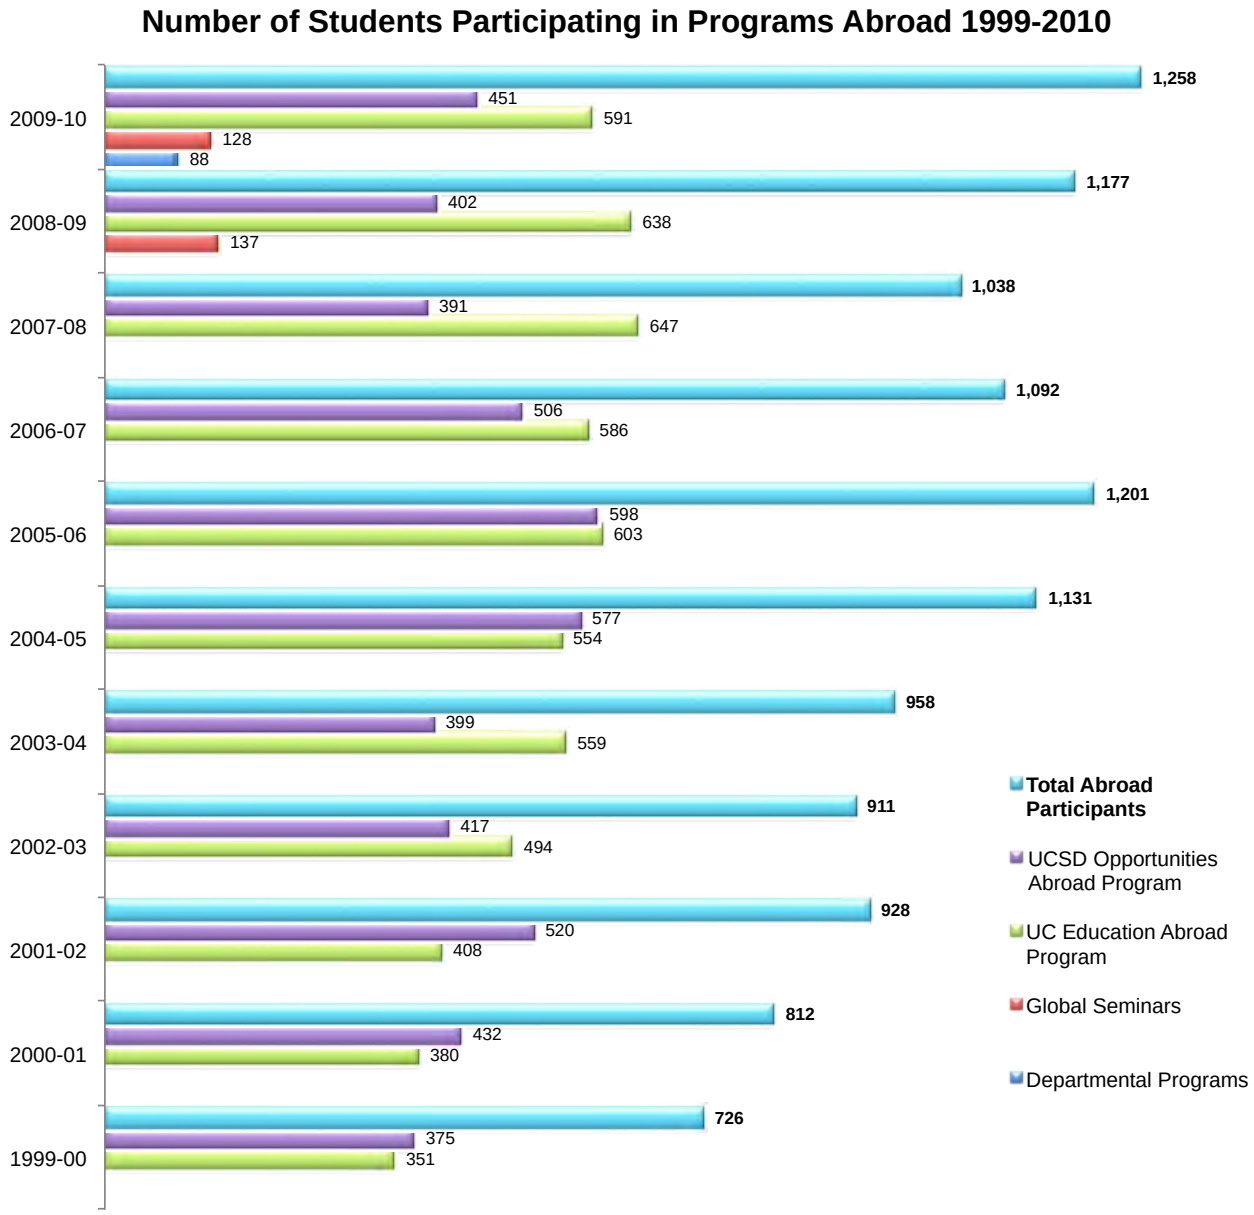
The Big Picture



Starting with 2006-07, UC San Diego graduating seniors accepted into JET and Peace Corps are no longer included in this chart. UCSD Global Seminars programs were launched in 2008-09, and UCSD PRIME and faculty-led department-based programs, such as those administered by the Anthropology department, are included beginning in 2009-10.

In Support of the Chancellor's Goal

Approximately 22% of UC San Diego students currently participate in an education abroad experience before they graduate. The Chancellor's goal is to send 50% of undergraduate students abroad before graduation. To achieve this goal, Programs Abroad has a codifed plan that includes efforts to involve more faculty and departments in our academic integration strategies, as well as a plan to bring study abroad alumni and current students together in mentoring relationships.

Programs Abroad Participation by College and Graduate Students

College/Level	EAP	OAP	GS	DEPT	Total Abroad	EAP Reciprocal Exchange Students At UCSD*
Revelle College	67	72	19	6	164	44
Muir College	119	83	11	17	230	22

Other or not specified	0	1	6	4	11	21
TOTAL	591	451	128	88	1,258	259

Roosevelt College remains the leading sender of study abroad students. However, both Thurgood Marshall College and Sixth College had significant increases from last year in their number of study abroad participants. The number of Marshall students increased by 14%, while the number of Sixth students increased by 23%.

*The total number of EAP Reciprocal students in the section of the Annual Report is 259 while the total number of EAP-R students in the ISOP appendix of the Annual Report is 262. The apparent discrepancy is due to the fact that some EAP-R students have dual U.S. citizenship and are therefore not counted in the ISPO section.

More graduate students participate in education abroad; however, the numbers reflected in the table above count only those who utilized PAO's advising services.

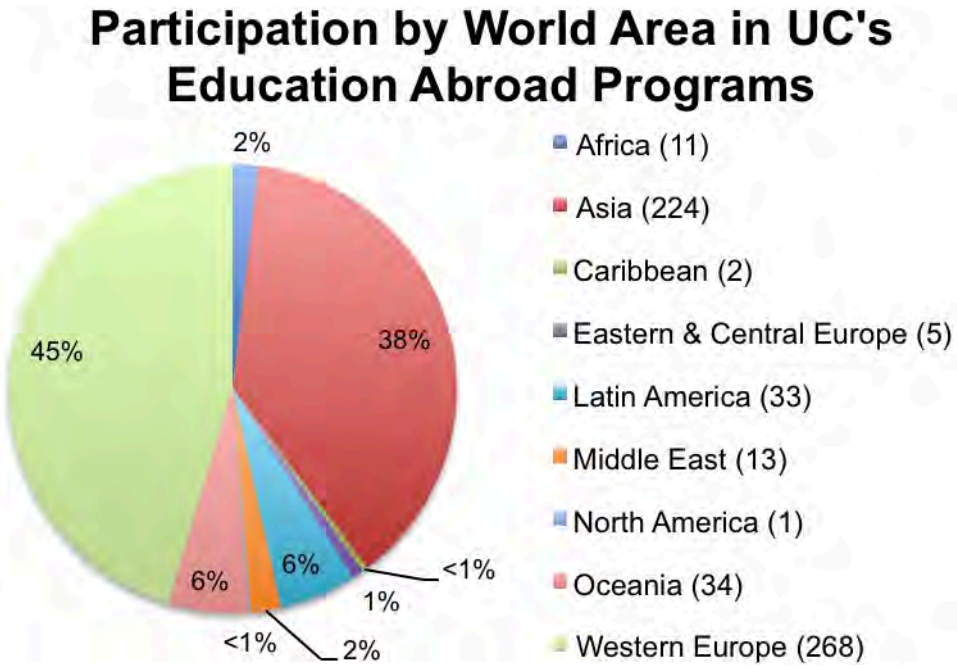
Tritons Without Borders



Departmental Programs

We are pleased to include this year the number of students participating in programs run by faculty in academic departments. In 2009/2010 the geographic distribution of these students was 47% in the Middle East, 28% in Asia, 16% in Latin America and 9% in Oceania.

Global Seminars

128 students participated in Global Seminars (GS) in 2009. The GS model enables students to complete two UCSD courses abroad in five weeks, taught by UC San Diego faculty.

11% of GS students studied in the Middle East (Turkey) while the other 89% were in destinations in Western Europe (Germany, Italy, Netherlands, and Spain).

The 2009 programs attracted many participants from non-traditional populations in education abroad, including STEM majors and first generation college students. We are especially pleased to note that the percentage of GS participants with high to moderate financial need (51%) is close to the campus percentage of students in these categories (56%). This is indicative that financial need is not a barrier to students' participation in Global Seminars.

For a complete list of countries hosting UC San Diego students for education abroad, see page 40 in the Appendix.

Demographics of Study Abroad Students

UC San Diego's study abroad participation follow the national gender trend for study abroad.

A National Leader in Year Long Study Abroad

Overall participation in study abroad at UC San Diego reflects the national trend toward short term programs. However, 13% of our participants studied abroad for a full academic year, compared to the national average of 4.2%, placing UC San Diego 10th in the nation, for our Carnegie classification, for long term study abroad. It is also of note that we saw a 12% increase from 2008-09 to 2009-10 in the number of our students choosing long term study abroad.

1. The above chart includes a selected list of minors commonly represented among study abroad.
2. Students often complete requirements for a minor in thes fields while abroad.

Funding Education Abroad

Scholarships for Study Abroad

UC San Diego students receive approximately $500,000 annually in study abroad scholarships. Programs Abroad helps by advising students about their scholarship options, administers several study abroad scholarship programs internally, and has recently launched study abroad scholarship essay writing workshops to improve the competitiveness of students' applications. As a direct result of these efforts, UC San Diego ranked 6th nationally in 2010 for the number of our students who received the Benjamin Gilman Study Abroad Scholarship.

Studying abroad does not delay graduation!

An analysis of the freshmen student cohort entering in fall of 2002 showed that of the students who studied abroad, 92% graduated in 5 years (4 years and 1 quarter) while only 78% of those who did not study abroad graduated within the same time. Study abroad does not delay graduation regardless of major, ethnicity, parental income, predicted first year GPA, gender, 1st generation, college, SAT score, high school GPA, or any other factor. Please encourage students to attend a First Steps Meeting to learn more about education abroad opportunities (study, research, internship, volunteer, work, service learning).

Majority of Study Abroad Students Are Taking Major Courses Abroad

According to a recent survey of our study abroad students and returnees, 70% of students take courses in their major field while abroad, and 95% of these students expect to receive major credit for these courses. We expect both of these percentages to increase as we continue to develop and expand our academic integration efforts across campus.

Education Abroad: A Life-long Impact

According to the International Center Study Abroad Alumni Survey, Fall 2008:

- 50.7% of respondents agreed or strongly agreed that study abroad influenced their choice of career;
- 38.5% said that study abroad helped them get their first job;
- Over 90% valued cross-cultural and language learning experiences both personally and professionally.

Support for the International Center

Walk to the International Center at any time of day and you'll see one-on-one tutoring, bargain shoppers at the Friends' Resale Shop, cooking lessons, craft classes, and delicious and multi-ethnic meals being shared – often in many languages!

Internationalize your Experience!

JOIN I-Club for dynamic cross-cultural exchange!
ENGAGE in dialog by meeting people from all over the globe.
MENTOR our international newcomers by becoming a Peer Leader.
VOLUNTEER to become an English language tutor.
EAT delicious international cuisine every Friday at International Café!

Jennie Chin

Since retiring from UCSD in 2010, Jennie has thrown herself into two of the Center's programs. Every Wednesday morning, we find Jennie arriving at the Center early to prepare for the scheduled activity of the day at Wednesday Coffee--she is a wonderful teacher in beading and knitting, and a leader in cooking. On Fridays, Jennie arrives at the Center to help prepare the Friday Café lunches--she also volunteers for all the other Center sponsored meals, and is a superb volunteer.

Volunteer opportunities, such as the English-in-Action Tutor Program, are available to the entire UC San Diego community. The tutor program facilitates international education exchange activities with international students, scholars and their families and helps broaden the perspectives and cross-cultural skills for all participants involved.

To become a tutor or to inquire about tutoring services, visit:
iprograms.ucsd.edu

Students who have just returned from abroad can apply their study abroad experience in a variety of ways including working as a student assistant in the Programs Abroad Office, leading First Steps meetings or country orientations, volunteering as an Orientation Assistant for the New International Student and Scholar Orientations and Welcome Events or as a Peer Leader, tutoring, or simply by meeting other returnees for coffee in the International Center Lounge. By providing multiple options to assist students with the reentry process, the International Center maximizes the sharing potential of students' international education experience with the UC San Diego Community.

Encourage a student you know to find out how they can get involved!

Get Involved and Make a Difference

Are you interested in cross-cultural exchange and looking for opportunities to internationalize your experience by meeting people from all over the globe?
The International Center welcomes everyone and anyone to be part of the international dialogue and understanding that takes places here every day!

English-in-Action Tutor Program

Help an international student, scholar, or family member improve his/her conversational English.

International Friday Café

Fund and help serve a luncheon for UC San Diego's international community or join the weekly event to meet new people.

Cooking in America Class

Teach international spouses how to cook using local ingredients in the International Center's kitchen.

Wednesday Morning Coffee

Help host a weekly gathering of international spouses and children and share crafts and traditions.
